

Musical meetings of the project "Music Makes us one":

small artists eagerly awaiting to come to the library.

We are amazed at how happy are children here, among books and musical instruments.

The professor, who's the project coordinator, says she is extremely happy and also surprised that nearly all have the desire to learn to handle a musical instrument. He feels them flickering of impatience and attentive to what is happening around them. He presented them one by one: organ, piano, violin, Tibetan singing bowl.

It is an unparalleled insight into the world of music that reveals each of us, participants, parents, teachers, grandparents, librarians, mere spectators, spiritual and artistic facets and dimensions unthinkable until a month ago.

A project showing that together we can!

It's in our power to change something for the better, in our power to generate bliss and harmony around us in our power to do something for our children! Things and people can be better and through music we are united!

The project is very well received in the community: officials, people in administration, people in the press, welcome this initiative and express their support and sustain. Mayor of Ramnicu Valcea is interested in this project and would like to visit us. Echo project spread to the country, reporters from national radio come and make reports on the spot.
