

Light a candle for respect, openness and peaceful co-existence Global chain of light ceremony February 3rd 2013

The first week of February every year UN celebrates Interfaith Harmony Week. In Denmark we marked this in 2012 by lightning torches on the central Town Hall square of Copenhagen – Christians, Muslims, Jews, Buddhists, Hindus and Sikhs together.

We'll do it again this February, but we invite the entire world to participate. Let the light shine all over the globe to symbolise peaceful co-existence, joy and harmony between different faiths.

We hope that you want to participate – whether by lightning a candle in privacy or lightning torches together in public. Every light is welcome and important. Even the smallest candle can create light and warmth in the heart of a friend or a stranger.

Register

We would like to hear from you with a contact person, country, and e-mail address, and if possible with a description of your light ceremony. Then we – when February 3rd approaches – will mail a list with all participating countries and publish it on our website: <http://www.troihammoni.dk/side7.html>

The list will be published only with the name of the country in question, without contact names and other contact information.

Please send the above information on February 1st 2013 at the latest to: troiharmoni@gmail.com

Light a candle on Facebook

You can also light a virtual candle on Facebook. Follow the link and please pass it on to your network: <http://www.facebook.com/home.php#!/events/148247611994303/> You can see the Facebook page, even if you are not a Facebook user.

Interfaith in Copenhagen

Interfaith Harmony Week is celebrated in Copenhagen with a big experimental performance show with participants of all faiths. We will film the event and put a link on the above webpage and this site during February.

SPREAD THE MESSAGE! PLEASE PASS ON THIS INVITATION!

Kind regards,

Anna Eskelund, Chairman
